

Above: Emily Roper 6, with a fork while Mekyja Jenkins 6, (kneeling) and Phoebe Bennett 6, weed in the background.

Left: Arowen Bennett 4, waters a flower.

Spring's helping hands

SPRING is in the air and at the Busselton Community Garden flowers and trees are starting to blossom and vegies are starting to grow.

Every week people from the community come to fiddle in the gardens or have a look around.

Armed with garden tools and a lot of enthusiasm, the members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints put their green fingers to work at the community garden as part of a nationwide 'Helping Hands' service project.

Adults and children combined in weeding, watering and moving sand, wooden beams and mulch, the latter of which was accomplished in a very fast time through wheel barrow races.

Busy bees are a weekly thing at the Busselton Community Garden and perhaps that's why the place is coming along so nicely.